The Western News Style Guide is designed to offer consistency and clarity in writing style for all content developed by Western Communications. While developed specifically for Western Communications, the guide is available to all members of the Western community as a helpful reference. Style rules for formal material such as letters, invitations, certificates and the like can differ from these guidelines.

If not listed in this guide, Western follows The Canadian Press (CP) for style and Oxford Canadian Dictionary of Current English for spelling. Deviations and variations from these external references specific to Western can be found in the Western News Style Guide.

We consider this a living document that will be updated on an ongoing basis, when necessary.

This guide focuses on items more commonly encountered in storytelling and writing Western-related content. The content is divided into three chapters:

- Acronyms, abbreviations and short forms
- Capitalization
- Writing style

Please forward questions, comments, additions or concerns to newseditor@uwo.ca.

Members include: Western, Alberta, British Columbia, Calgary, Dalhousie, Laval, Manitoba, McGill, McMaster, Montreal, Ottawa, Queen’s, Saskatchewan, Toronto and Waterloo. Use U15 in all references (although use this reference sparingly in news stories, as it does not have wide recognition beyond academics at research-intensive universities themselves).

Sports

U Sports is the national governing body of university sport in Canada. Use U Sports in all references.

Ontario University Athletics is Ontario’s governing body of university sport. Use Ontario University Athletics on first reference, and OUA on succeeding references.
First Nation(s)
Capitalize in all instances. First Nation is a term used to describe Indigenous Peoples of Canada who are ethnically neither Métis nor Inuit. This term came into common usage in the 1970s and 1980s and generally replaced the term Indian, although unlike Indian, the term First Nation does not have a legal definition.

Indigenous Peoples
Capitalize in all instances. The term Indigenous Peoples is an all-encompassing term that includes the First Peoples of Canada.

While First Nations refers to the ethnicity of First Peoples, the singular First Nation can refer to a band, a reserve-based community or a larger tribal grouping and the status Indians who live in them.

First Peoples
Capitalize in all instances. First Peoples is an all-encompassing term that includes Inuit, First Nations and Métis.
Métis
capitalize in all instances. The term refers to a collective of cultures and ethnic identities that resulted from unions between Indigenous and European people in Canada.

This term has general and specific uses, and the differences between them are often contentious. It is sometimes used as a general term to refer to people of mixed ancestry, whereas in a legal context, Métis refers to descendants of specific historic communities.

Innu
Capitalized in all instances. Innu are a First Nations group located in northeastern Quebec and central Labrador.

Inuit
Capitalized in all instances. Refers to a member of an Indigenous people of northern Canada and parts of Greenland and Alaska.

Native
Avoid using this term when referring to Indigenous Peoples.

More resources
Office of Indigenous Initiatives

Indigenous as an adjective
Lowercase indigenous when used as an adjective to refer to a thing that is naturally occurring or originating from a place.

The pawpaw tree is indigenous to southwestern Ontario.

Internet, website, email, and website names
Lowercase internet, website and email (not e-mail). Capitalize Twitter, but lowercase when used as a verb (i.e., tweet, tweeted)

Units
Capitalize names of units at Western

- Western International
- Student Experience
- Office of Indigenous Initiatives

Nationalities, peoples, races and tribes
Capitalize the proper names of nationalities, peoples, races and tribes.

- Capitalize Black in racial reference, but do not capitalize white

In the United States, African-American is also used; in Canada, African-Canadian may be used when necessary for context, but avoid if possible. Use Black or Black Canadians instead.

Occupational titles and descriptions
Lowercase occupational titles and descriptions, including officials of companies and organizations.

Orientation Week
Write Orientation Week in uppercase when referencing Western’s Orientation Week. Lowercase general references to first-year orientation week outside of Western.

Use OWeek as a short form for Western’s Orientation Week.

Professor
Lowercase professor at all times, including when preceding a name.

Western University professor John Smith may understand the book better than anyone on Earth. John Smith, a Western University professor, may understand the book better.

Proper names
Capitalize proper names of people, places, events, organizations.

Sports
Do not capitalize sports teams unless it’s an official name

The women’s hockey team took home the title. The Western Mustangs are playing against the home team.

Western University
Use Western University on first reference, then Western on succeeding reference. Although The University of Western Ontario remains the university’s legal name, do not use The University of Western Ontario (or UWO) in any reference.

Do not capitalize “university” when standing alone, even in reference to Western Western University issued the statement yesterday. The university will implement the changes next month.

Western Libraries
Capitalize Western Libraries when referring to Western’s entire library system.

Western University Senate
Capitalize the formal reference to Western University Senate, but lowercase senate when standing alone.
Writing styles and formats

Active voice
Whenever possible, always use active voice over passive voice in sentences. Active voice shows the subject doing the action.

Jane loves Western.
(Avoid) Western is loved by Jane.

Passive voice is not incorrect; it’s just not the best way to phrase ideas within news stories or broad communication. Utilizing active voice can tighten writing and avoid awkward, vague or wordy sentences.

Bullet lists
must have simple and consistent formatting within a story. Punctuation use and capitalization will depend on the length and type of content. As a general rule, short lists don’t need punctuation or need not be capitalized. For standardization, use en dash for lists.

Features of the new building include:
– a cafeteria
– a library
– a research lab

For longer copy, or those that could stand on their own as a sentence, capitalize the first letter of the first word of each bullet and use a period at the end of each line.

The research aims to:
– Reduce the risks of post-partum depression in new mothers.

– Provide guidance on how to support new parents.
– Update existing guidelines on post-partum care

Commas
Use commas to separate elements of a series but not before the final element preceded by “and,” “or” or “nor” – except when not putting a comma would cause confusion.

She bought eggs, bacon and bread.

The research team is investigating how the disease can progress overtime, what the symptoms are, who could get infected, and what the likelihood of survival is.

Courtesy titles
Do not use courtesy titles such as Mr., Mrs., Miss and Ms. They should be avoided unless deemed culturally necessary for specific documents.

Currency
Canadian currency is assumed in most cases. When clarity is required, use C$ preceding the figure. When referring to US currency, use US$ preceding the figure.

C$30 million, US$20 million

As best practice, always convert foreign currencies to Canadian dollar equivalent and clarify with phrases like “the equivalent of C$200.”

Other commonly used currency codes, include CNY (China yuan renminbi), EUR (Euro) and GBP (British pounds)

Cutlines/captions
Treated as an independent element, with all names and references requiring first-use rules. Do not assume a reader will read both the story and the cutline. In photos with multiple people, identify individuals from top, then left to right.

Photo source attribution must always follow a cutline, and enclosed in parentheses. Attribution should contain the name of the photographer, if applicable, followed by a forward slash and the name of the organization, if applicable. Follow this format regardless of whether the image is internally (Westerns Communications or faculty) or externally sourced (stock photos, submitted photos).

Members of the judging committee include:

For images submitted by a source but with unknown origin, attribution will follow this format: cutline (submitted photo)

Dr. Muhammad Ali receiving the Order of Canada (submitted photo)

Datelines and placelines precede the lead in a story to tell readers where the writer is reporting from and where the story took place. Use placelines only for stories outside London, Ont., AND if a writer is reporting from that location.

In general, it should include the city/municipality and province/state, if it’s in Canada and in the U.S. For all other countries, the city/municipality is followed by the country.

SURREY, B.C.
IQUALUIT, Nunavut
SYDNEY, Australia
Follow the guidelines above, except for these well-known cities in Canada: CALGARY, CHARLOTTETOWN, EDMONTON, FREDERICTON, HALIFAX, HAMILTON, MONTREAL, OTTAWA, QUEBEC, REGINA, SASKATOON, TORONTO, VANCOUVER, VICTORIA, WHITEHORSE, WINNIPEG, YELLOWKNIFE.

For a list of well-known U.S. cities that don’t require mention of state, refer to the CP Style Guide. Do not assume all readers are from London, Ont. Always include the province when referring to the city of London (i.e., London, Ont.).

Gendered terms

Avoid using gendered terms in alumni references. As best practice, use: alum or graduate, regardless of gender, for singular; alumni for plural.

Alumni are referred to by full name, degree and graduation year, if applicable, on first reference, unless in the lede of the story, and by last name only in subsequent references. Program may be included, but not necessary.

Jane Smith, BA’85, MBA’00, is taking risks in her latest role as chair and CEO. In July 2009, Smith made the transition from president of the organization.

Jane Smith, BA’97 (English and writing studies), is open to talking about her new book.

en dash ( – )

For consistency, always use en dash ( – )

Use en dashes in cases of mid-sentence lists that are separated by commas, or in instances when using a comma would be confusing.

The new program is a cross-faculty collaboration – engineering, health sciences and education – aimed at increasing real-world skills.

The Smith sisters – Jane and Julia – both went to Western.

Gender-neutral pronouns

In stories about people who identify as neither male nor female or ask not to be referred to as he/she/him/her, they/them/their is acceptable as a singular and/or gender-neutral pronoun.

Clarity is a top priority: gender-neutral use of singular “they” is unfamiliar to many readers.

If they/them/their use is essential, explain in the text that the person prefers a gender-neutral pronoun. Be sure that the phrasing does not imply more than one person.

Following CP Style, avoid using other gender-neutral pronouns such as xe or ze.

Hyphen

Use a hyphen when you join two words to form a compound modifier

First-year course; part-time studies; government-mandated budget cuts.

In general, a hyphen should not be used to join a prefix to a root/base except to avoid doubling a vowel, tripling a consonant, duplicating a prefix or when the context is confusing or to provide clarity.

co-operation, co-operate; multidisciplinary; anti-inflammatory

Use a hyphen with the prefix ‘re’ where the word would otherwise be confusing.

re-coiled the rope (as opposed to recoiled in horror)
re-covered a chair (as opposed to recovered from an illness).

Never hyphenate -ly modifiers.

Internationally known researcher

Honours

Use the Canadian spelling of the word – honours – in all instances except when used in the phrase ‘honorary degree(s),’ in which case the u is dropped.

This follows a unanimous recommendation of the senate committee on academic policy and awards in April 2019.

Internship

Use internship as a catch-all term used for external, general audiences, including media. Use covers all internships, co-ops and practicums.

Italics

Italicize the titles of books, journals, periodicals, newspapers, pamphlets, proceedings, collections, theses, dissertations, plays, movies, television shows, operas, oratorios, paintings, drawings, sculptures and other works of art.

Italicize words and phrases that are not part of the English language or a foreign language translation of an English word or phrase.
When writing in digits, use comma to separate figures in blocks of three digits.

1,000; 500,000

Use period for decimal marks

67.5 per cent; 3.2 points

Per cent

When writing in digits, use comma to separate figures in blocks of three digits.

1,000; 500,000

Use period for decimal marks

67.5 per cent; 3.2 points

Mental health

When referencing issues of mental health, do not describe an individual as 'mentally ill' unless pertinent to a story and diagnosis is properly sourced, or it is part of a quote. When used, identify the source for the diagnosis.

Everyone has mental health; mental illness is a term that refers only to diagnosed mental health issues.

Mental illness is a general condition. Specific disorders are types of mental illnesses and should be used whenever possible:

He was diagnosed with schizophrenia, according to court documents.
She was diagnosed with anorexia, according to her parents.

Avoid descriptions that connote pity, such as 'afflicted with,' 'suffers from' or 'victim of.'

He has obsessive-compulsive disorder.

Mustangs

Use Mustangs in reference to athletes and athletic teams, but not for general student population. Avoid using Mustang when referring to a single athlete.

Names

Always write the first and last name of a person on first reference. Use last name only on succeeding reference, unless first name is needed for clarity (for instance, quoting multiple members of a family with the same last name).

Dave and Laura Smith are both Western students. Laura is graduating this year.

Numbers

As a rule, spell out numbers between zero and nine, use numerals for 10 and higher.

Always spell out a number that begins a sentence. If the number is large or would be cumbersome to spell out, reword the sentence so the number doesn’t appear at the beginning. The goal is readability.

Use numerals for the following: ages, days of the month, degrees of temperature, dimensions, house numerals, percentages, proportions, scores, serial numbers, speeds, sums of money, time of day, votes and years.

Use “to” when writing a range of numbers. Avoid using hyphen.

15 to 20 / five to six grams of sugar
5th place

When writing in digits, use comma to separate figures in blocks of three digits.

1,000; 500,000

Use period for decimal marks

67.5 per cent; 3.2 points

Per cent

Per cent is spelled with two words, not percent. Always use figures and decimals, avoid spelling out numbers and fractions unless necessary for clarity.

1 per cent, 2.5 per cent, 0.6 per cent,
30 per cent, a third of a per cent

Do not use the % symbol in stories.

Measurements

When writing measurements, Canadian Press suggests using the metric system for most measurements, although it stresses clarity as key to the decision. Much of that clarity is at the writer’s discretion taking audience into consideration.

In most cases, when an imperial figure must be used, it should be accompanied by its metric equivalent. If exact measurements are not required, round figure to the nearest whole number.

Do not change quotations to reflect style, simply refer to metric in parentheses.

“[The float was nearly 100-feet (30-metres) tall],” said John Smith. “No wonder it couldn’t clear that underpass.”

Among the exceptions are more conventional references, such as personal height and weight, two-by-fours, quarter-inch screws, etc.

Smith, who was a six-foot, 250-pound linebacker for the 1948 Mustangs football team, never fully embraced the change of coaches and transferred the next season.

Speed and distance are expressed in kilometres/hour and kilometres.

Do not mix imperial and metric measurements when possible.

Names

Always write the first and last name of a person on first reference. Use last name only on succeeding reference, unless first name is needed for clarity (for instance, quoting multiple members of a family with the same last name).

Dave and Laura Smith are both Western students. Laura is graduating this year.

1 per cent, 2.5 per cent, 0.6 per cent,
30 per cent, a third of a per cent

Do not use the % symbol in stories.
PhD
By definition, a PhD student is someone who is enrolled in doctoral coursework and working toward their degree. A PhD candidate is someone who has completed all course requirements and exams but has not completed their thesis or dissertation.

When identifying a source as a PhD candidate or PhD student, bear in mind the above definition, and use the term that applies.

Professors
In Western News stories, do not distinguish between assistant professors, associate professors and full professors unless it is relevant to the story. Refer to all types as ‘professor,’ with the exception of professor emeritus, in which case, use the full designation.

Never abbreviate as prof., except when used in headlines or for social media posts.

Quotation marks
Double quotation marks should be used only in cases of direct quotations no matter the length.

Single quotation marks should be used in cases of colloquial and emphasis.

Use single quotations in headlines to use a phrase from a direct quote.

Social distancing
Although ‘social distancing’ and ‘physical distancing’ have been used interchangeably during the COVID-19 pandemic, the preference is to use ‘physical distancing.’

Temperatures
Use Celsius when referencing temperatures, unless in quotation or necessary for scientific explanation (e.g., Kelvin). In most cases, when an imperial figure must be used, it should be accompanied by its metric equivalent. Write C following the number and a space.

Western researchers braved 130 F (54 C) heat to get the necessary research.

Tense
Tense in stories may be past or present. In general, use past tense when quoting sources for stories that have a news element.

Smith announced the new plan in a press conference. “This is our new path forward,” he said.

For longer, feature articles, present tense may be used.

She pauses as she heads out the door. “See you soon,” she yells as she continues to walk away.

Time, day/date, location
Write all information in time, day/date, location order

The meeting has been moved to 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, Nov. 11 in University College 2130.

Do not use suffixes -st, -nd, -rd, -th. Use year only when referring to one other than the current year.

The group first met on April 5, 2009. They have accomplished little since that date. At a Sept. 13 meeting, they hope to get back on track.

When writing time, use figures except for noon and midnight. Use a colon to separate hours from minutes

5 p.m.; 10:30 a.m.

When writing a span of time, separate them with “to.” Avoid using hyphen.

5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Western students
When referencing Western students in stories, it is best practice to use this format on first reference: full name, year and program, affiliated institution.

“This is amazing research,” said John Smith, a first-year health sciences student at Brescia University College.

Year
Use year only when referring to one other than the current year.

The group first met on April 5, 2009. They have accomplished little since that date. At a Sept. 13 meeting, they hope to get back on track.

For consistency, use “to” when writing a range of years. Do not use hyphen to separate the first and last years. Write both years in full.

He worked at Western from 2001 to 2008.
